

Doctoral Work - Natural resource industries and the state in collaborative approaches to water governance: a power-based analysis

- Power in collaborative approaches to governance for water: a systematic review
- State roles and motivations in collaborative approaches to water governance: a power theory-based analysis
- Natural resource industry involvement in collaboration for water governance: influence on processes and outcomes in Canada

Marie Claire Brisbois, MAsc., PhD.
Adjunct Professor
University of Waterloo

Current Work

- Social psychology, terror management theory and water governance
- Transformative learning through citizen science
- Using power to identify opportunities for transformative change with a focus on place-based governance and transdisciplinary research methods

Marie Claire Brisbois, MAsc., PhD.
Adjunct Professor
University of Waterloo